DETAILED ACTION

Priority

1. Receipt is acknowledged of papers submitted under 35 U.S.C. 119(a)-(d), which papers have been placed of record in the file.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent, or on an international application by another who has fulfilled the requirements of paragraphs (1), (2), and (4) of section 371(c) of this title before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent.

The changes made to 35 U.S.C. 102(e) by the American Inventors Protection Act of 1999 (AIPA) and the Intellectual Property and High Technology Technical Amendments Act of 2002 do not apply when the reference is a U.S. patent resulting directly or indirectly from an international application filed before November 29, 2000. Therefore, the prior art date of the reference is determined under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) prior to the amendment by the AIPA (pre-AIPA 35 U.S.C. 102(e)).

3. Claims <sup>1-8</sup>~~1~~ are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Haartsen (US 6,009,332).

Referring to Claim 1, Haartsen teaches a method for configuring a base station of a cellular network; characterized in that the method comprises the steps of:

- downloading information from the network about frequencies used by neighbouring base stations into a mobile communication means (see col. 8, lines 17-20);
- scanning a frequency band of the cellular network with said mobile communication means for determining signal levels within the frequency band (see col. 8, lines 49-57);
- receiving a selection of an operating frequency for the base station from the user of said mobile communication means (see col. 11, lines 57-59);
- transmitting configuration information comprising at least the selected operating frequency for the base station from said mobile communication means (see col. 11, lines 57-59), and
- configuring the base station according to the transmitted information (see col. 15, lines 7-9).

Referring to Claim 2, Harrtsen also teaches downloading at least one parameter set into said mobile communication means from the network (see col. 8, lines 17-20);

- selecting one parameter set from said at least one parameter sets for the base station using said mobile communication means (see col. 11, lines 57-59) and transmitting information about the selection of the parameter set to the cellular network (see col. 8, lines 35-37).

Referring to Claim 3, Haartsen also teaches selecting the transmission power of the base station using said mobile communication means (see col. 8, lines 32-37).

Referring to Claim 4, Haartsen also teaches creating the near neighbour relations of the base station (see col. 8, lines 45-48).

Referring to Claim 5, Haartsen also teaches adjusting the near neighbour relations of the base station (see col. 8, lines 45-48).

Referring to Claim 6, Haartsen also teaches the information about frequencies comprising information of BCCH frequencies of nearby cells and of TCH frequencies corresponding to said BCCH frequencies (see col. 8, lines 45-48).

Referring to Claim 7, Haartsen also teaches a processor for controlling frequency scanning (see col. 8, line 49), a memory for storing a program for the processor, a receiver and an antenna for receiving on a plurality of frequencies (fig. 1), transmitting means for transmitting data obtained from frequency scanning to a base station (fig. 1), processing means for scan a frequency band of the cellular telecommunications network for determining signal levels within the frequency band (see col. 8, lines 52-57) and processing means to transmit configuration information for the base station to the cellular network (see 20 and 21 of fig. 1).

Referring to Claim 8, Haartsen also teaches a display for presenting results of said frequency scanning and a keyboard for inputting data (see col. 1, lines 46-64 also noting that a display and keyboard are present in all cellular phones used today).
